

Abstract

[0029] A method for write-disabling a storage device is provided. The storage device includes a storage medium and a firmware. The method includes: (a) storing a first parameter in the storage medium; (b) receiving the first parameter from the storage medium by the firmware when the firmware receives a write command; and (c) refusing to execute the write command when the first parameter equals a predetermined disable parameter.